

ADJUDICATION

IN THE MATTER OF A GENERAL ENQUIRY INTO ALLEGED SOLICITOR
NEGLIGENCE; between:

Adian McGuinness, Applicant v Adrian Greaney, Solicitor, Respondent

.....

Having considered the above-listed matter as per the terms, conditions, procedures and authorities laid out in the respective foundation documents of The People's Tribunal of Ireland; and upon consideration of the evidence supplied by the Parties to this matter as to the question of any breach of the Respondent's 'duty of care' to the Applicant's as per the 'Definition of Solicitor Negligence' (Ex B), I hereby find as follows: (delete as required*).

* (i) Application upheld.

~~* (ii) Application not proven.~~

[Optional]: My reasons for this finding are further explained below / ~~on the rear of this form~~
~~/ or by attached _____ (number of) pages.~~

I uphold the Applicant's claim in this matter and find that the Respondent's conduct in the matters referred to in the Applicant's Statement constitute several serious, egregious, and arguably criminal violations of the Solicitor's Code of Conduct as laid out in items listed (a) to (i) on Exhibit B, "Definition of Solicitor Negligence".

[Optional]: After consideration of the respective legislation, I further affirm my opinion that there have been violations of the legislation listed below (and/or overleaf), as indicated, sufficient to qualify as criminal offences.

In my opinion, it appears the Applicant Mr Aidan McGuinness has established sufficient grounds and evidence to refer his Statement to An Garda Siochana in the form of a criminal complaint alleging premeditated fraud on the part of the Respondent Adrian Greaney, Solicitor, and to take whatever other options are available to him to recover the monies lost to Mr Greaney which were secured under false pretences.

I hereby conclude this adjudication.
